This week we focused on creating the final presentation that we will give to the faculty panel next week on December 6th. We gave our presentation to our advisor on Wednesday during our meeting and to those who were in class on Thursday. We received some good feedback to tweak our presentation and feel fully prepared for next week.

Pending Issues

None at this time.

Plans for Upcoming Reporting Period

We plan to include information about how our faculty panel presentation went along with hopefully receiving our ordered parts so the hardware team can work on testing. Our software team will finalize the design of our app and start working on creating the user interface.
